

Preliminary Details Announced for the Tokyo Sustainable Seafood Symposium 2020 Asia's Largest Sustainable Seafood Business Symposium to be Held Virtually

Tokyo, Japan (June, 8, 2020)

Seafood Legacy, Co., Ltd., and Nikkei ESG officially announced the preliminary details of the Tokyo Sustainable Seafood Symposium 2020 (TSSS2020). Due to the global COVID-19 pandemic, the annual flagship event of Japan's sustainable seafood movement is shifting to virtual event, beginning on the first week of November 2020. The virtual TSSS2020 will break through the physical boundaries and allow participants from all around the world to learn, share, and connect on the dynamic virtual space.

"The COVID-19 pandemic has exposed the seafood industry's vulnerabilities and dramatically transformed our consumption habits and global seafood supply chain", said Wakao Hanaoka, CEO of Seafood Legacy. "The TSSS2020 seeks to lay out a roadmap for the Japanese seafood industry to continue surviving in a post-pandemic new normal society and chart a way forward for the sustainable seafood movement."

Following its launch at last year's symposium, the "Japan Sustainable Seafood Award" will also be presented this year to recognize the efforts of leaders who have contributed to energizing the sustainable seafood movement in Japan.

The registration is free of charge and is open to all international participants. More information and the registration will become available this summer on the TSSS2020 official website.
